Miss Chapman

I have carefully examined the coins you left & find none I care for. I do want a good stater of Phillip II of Macedon in very fine condition & if you have one to offer please send it on approval.

What shall I do with the coins you left?

Yours truly

C. L. Emmey

Mess. S. H. & H. Chapman,

Gentlemen:

Enclosed please find my certified check for $19.12 to pay for the Waterloo Medal. Kindly send receipted bill to me in care of Rev. Frank A. Johnson, New Milford, Conn. One week from today I should like to receive a letter here, quoting price for a Victoria Cross medal, both in silver and bronze; in as fine a condition as the Waterloo medal. I shall be away all this week.

Very Truly Yours,

E. P. Tenney.

Messrs.S.H.& H.Chapman,

Gentlemen:

Yours of 22nd at hand. The Victoria Cross is too expensive for me, I shall have to drop it. Thank you for your quotations. I return herewith the description.

Truly Yours,

E P Tenney.

VICTORIA CROSS.

John Ryan of the 1st. Madras Fusiliers played the utmost intrepidity, and showed great devotion in sallying forth and bringing in some of our wounded, who were lying in their doolies outside, abandoned by their bearers, and being butchered by the rebels. One of the wounded was Captain Arnold of the 1st. Madras Fusiliers. ~~When the doolv-bearers fled on the 25th, he was left behind severely wounded, and unable to move a step. The whole evening and night he was surrounded by the rebels.~~ One of the wounded was Captain Arnold of the ~~1st.~~ 1st. Madras Fusiliers. When the doolv-bearers fled on the 25th, he was left behind severely wounded, and unable to move a step. The whole evening and night he was surrounded by the rebels, and agonized by the shrieks of his helpless companions, who were being slain with dreadful tortures by the pitiless foe. He afterwards said that often during that terrible night he ~~sei~~ seized his revolver in order to blow out his brains sooner than fall into the hands of the Sepoys. By some strange chance, however, he was overlooked, and early next morning M'Manus and Ryan at the peril of their lives, carried him in to the house. While being thus rescued, Captain Arnold was again wounded, and a few days later he died. Both Ryan and M'Manus received the Victoria Cross.
